Key Differences

1. Application Method - Coatings are dispensed onto an applicator and spread evenly over the surface in small sections, allowed to flash and then leveled out with a microfiber towel.
2. Durability - Traditional Coatings will have better durability and last longer than Spray Coatings due to the level of active ingredient in the coatings, and also because a thicker layer of product is applied when done with an applicator. With proper care and maintenance, coatings can last anywhere from 2-7 years, depending on the type chosen by the customer.
3. Level of Protection - Traditional Coatings provide a higher level of protection especially when it comes to scratch resistance because when there is a thicker layer of protection, a scratch will have to be deeper to reach the actual clearcoat beneath.
4. Cost - For the consumer, Traditional Coatings will also cost more to have applied due to the longer installation time and level of skill necessary to apply them correctly.
5. Gloss & Finish - Traditional Coatings can provide a deeper, more intense gloss & shine that enhances the vehicle's paint. While the Spray Coatings still enhance the gloss of the vehicle, the depth of shine is usually not as pronounced or long-lasting as Traditional Coating.
